FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12

We were a little disappointed that the overflow of Goose Creek produced no communication relative to that famed water course. Is it possible that all the literary men have abandoned the Goose Creek valley?

There is a very strong protective argument in the following paragraph clipped from the report of the reception given Channey M. Dewey, on his return from Europe:

The Europeans were scared to death about the McKinley bill, Mr. Dewey said. When he spoke to a waiter in a French restaurant about good prospects for next year, the waiter replied: "Oh, Bill McKinley is going to knock us all out."

The Upper Sandusky Union says: "Hon. H. T. Van Fleet, of Marion, was in the city and is highly enthusiastic over Mr. Hare's nomination." In the same issue of the Union we note that Mr. Van Fleet is the longest and most wordy telegram of congratulations. This may signify nothing particularly but it seems to remind that Democrats here are not wholly of one accord, but there are elements of—well, just like the Republicans.

Mr. Young, Mr. McNeil, and Mr. Davis, and perhaps Mr. Van Fleet, might get together and compare their bursted congressional boomlets. We believe they have all had promises with their aspirations, but fate has always been against the Marion county men. When the existing infamous gerrymander is wiped out and the old districts are restored we shall have an opportunity to try again on the republican side once more. But borrowing consolation from the future is mighty slim comfort.

In New York City fully one hundred thousand school children have been turned out of school because of a lack of accommodations in the buildings. This distressing state of affairs is due wholly to the labor organizations among the builders and repairers who persisted in striking during the summer vacation, on pretexts as silly as the results are displeasing. The ranks of organized labor are generally made up of sensible and well meaning men but the agitators seem wholly barren of brains. In this incidence the public and an army of children are damaged, and the builders have spent an idle summer.

We do not place much reliance in the stories that a republican nominee for Congress from Marion county could have smooth sailing to an election. The bitterness over the treachery at Carey will be removed largely in the enthusiasm of a campaign, and besides the bitterness is wholly confined to Marion county. Mr. Foster is the man to grease the wheels and give the Wyandot Hare a hot chase. The Fosterian statesman knows a good deal more about politics than even Doc Norton, who fooled the Marion democracy. Give us the Young-Man-Prod-of-His-Tail for a leader, and the Wyandots will be a sick looking tribe in November.

The rather sensational article in the Columbus Journal this morning in regard to the dissatisfaction of Marion county Democrats over the nomination of D. D. Hare, of Upper Sandusky, to make the race for Congress in the Eighth District, has caused considerable discussion on the streets. The statement referred to, that an indignation meeting would be held here, is hardly correct. So far as could be learned to day nothing in that direction will be done. However, the dissatisfaction remains, and the forty-eight hours that have elapsed since the distasteful nomination was made have not produced any change in the feelings of the disappointed. They are not disposed to submit quietly to the underhand methods by which the nomination of Hare was made, and no explanation is necessary from that gentleman after allowing himself to be used by the wily Norton to defeat Mr. Young.

Just what will be done does not positively transpire at this writing, but there is enough positive information to justify the belief that Mr. Hare will be requested to withdraw—and not only asked but demanded—by the Marion Democrats. It is known that steps to that end have been taken, and if they are not carried out by subsequent events it will doubtless be by reason of insufficient following.

The dissatisfaction remains, nevertheless, and if Mr. Hare does not withdraw he will be met by defeat. This is recognized by prominent members of the party here, and the gentleman himself tacitly acknowledges such a possibility. The Republicans of the district recognize the situation, and will take advantage of it by pressing their strongest man into service.

APPROVED MODES IN DRESS FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

Artistic Dresses and Bonnets for Little Girls of the Simplest but Most Attractive Character—A Pretty Dress Suit for a Boy.

Little girls nowadays often look like little fairies, only a trifle more substantial. In the picture-que garments fashioned for them by artistic fingers. There is a Parisian costume for girls from 2 to 6 years of age of a very quaint character. It is made of light wool fabric, and is set off with a frilled cape and a frilled collar, and makes the little maiden appear as if she had stepped out of a picture.

In the cut is shown an exceedingly useful as well as attractive sun bonnet. It is made of white embroidery. The front and crown are united with pinches of mail muslin, which muslin also serves for strings.

Nothing can be prettier than the little white silk frocks for evening wear. These are daintily smocked in colored silks. The accordion plaited frocks are very graceful, the plaits opening with every movement. Some very pretty yoke frocks have blouse sleeves and silk sashes. A new pinfold is a copy of a Russian blouse.

A dashing costume for a little man to wear at a fancy dress party or other evening occasion is a brown velvet suit. The trousers are tied at the knees with ribbon and ornamented with steel buttons. There is a little coat trimmed with steel buttons, a silk shirt and a sash.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE

What to Do When Fruit Stones are Swallowed.

A small fruit desert in the evening and afterward meat might only be lightly nibbled. For says a writer in Food, the average stomach will not rarely tolerate a heavy influx of such food.

This is the season when the agricultural swallowing of large fruit seeds often occurs, sometimes causing not only considerable inconvenience and suffering, but even occasionally resulting in death. A handy remedy, which is sanctioned by medical authority, is to be found in potatoes thoroughly cooked and eaten in large quantities, another food being taken for several days. It is said that the properties of the potato are such that while expelling the stomach and intestines they also cause them to relax to such a degree that any heavy article or obstruction is readily passed through with the mass.

Many people are under the impression that cucumber is very indigestible, and when they eat it they do so under protest, and with apprehensions of possibly dire consequences. How this delusion can be arisen. The London Hospital thinks it difficult to say, unless it be that cucumber is often eaten with salmon and other indigestible food friends. It is not the cucumber, however, but the salmon that sits so heavily upon our stomach's throne. Cucumber, according to this authority, is in fact very digestible when eaten properly. It cannot, indeed, be otherwise when it is remembered that it consists mainly of water, and that those parts which are not water are almost exclusively cells of a very rapid growth. In eating cucumber it is well to cut it into thin slices, and to masticate them thoroughly. Even the vinegar and the pepper that are so often added to it are of service to the digestion if not taken in excess.

Hereditary Tuft of White Hair. Anceps of the tuft of white hair which the famous L. de la Roche, Mr. Whitaker, bears. The British Medical Journal draws attention to a remarkable example of similar peculiarity, published in a French journal. In an old L. de la Roche family, which has members both male and female, have from their earliest youth a tuft of perfectly white hair, such as adorns the head of the well known London artist. This tuft is generally situated over the brow, but sometimes it is on the temple, and more rarely at the back of the head. The family has been famous for this distinctive mark in its own part of the country for three hundred years, and it is said to be as proud of it as Redoubtlet was of the hereditary hair on his forehead. The white lock, which can be seen in the family portraits for many generations back, is said to be rather becoming, even to the young women of the line.

A Pretty Formula for a Correct Walk. A graceful walk is a rare charm, and one worth taking a little trouble to acquire. Someone has given below a pretty formula for walking correctly, as follows: Place a stick or cane about your feet, first on the right, then on the left, and so on, until you reach the end of the line. Then, when you are at the end of the line, step lightly on the ball rather than the heel of the foot, do not bend the knees, except very, very slightly, in taking a step, and keep the toes in a straight line rather than turned outward.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE. A Pretty Parisian Innovation Upon the Stereotyped Dinner Party. At a recent large and fashionable Parisian dinner party the guests were not arranged in two long lines table d'hôte fashion, but instead there were a quantity of small tables, each held for six or eight persons. Each guest, as he arrived, was handed the name of the lady he was to escort, and the number of the table at which to place themselves. The center of each table was ornamented with a basket of flowers, and each basket contained various flowers of different colors. From the middle of each rose a lily-stem staff with a ribbon flag, on which the number of the table was embroidered. At the two principal tables the host and the hostess sat, and the guests sat at the other. This pretty variation of the stereotyped dinner party is interesting to hostesses in search of novel features, for which there seems a prevailing craze. After dinner all adjourned to the lawn, which was illuminated with lights among the trees.

A Christmas Party. Simple notes of invitation written in an informal manner should be sent to friends whom you wish to invite to a Christmas party, says The Art Interchange. The guests are invited to come at a certain hour, and when all are assembled the ceremony takes place. A table is set up, and a Christmas tree is placed in the center. The table is covered with a white cloth, and is set with white flowers, and any convenient part of the table is used for the Christmas tree. The tree is decorated with lights and ornaments, and a Christmas cake is placed on the table. The guests are then seated at the table, and the party is over.

One Thing and Another. New and things are greatly in vogue, a fact is observed from England. There is an art in entertaining as in everything else, and it is a science to social life. Extravagant expenditures, a rich spread to the various surroundings, and the most elaborate and often full to impart that spirit of festivity which is frequently found in the simplest, most unpretentious homes.

A Novelty in wedding cards reflects the fashion of many years ago in tying the cards together with a bow of silver cord. Pretty things in note paper include a pale pink and a bright blue also a delicate green, with a line of gold tracery at the head and foot, and also on the envelope. A faint silver design of some work on a shield pink at the very end looks as if it were seen through a mist, but is very effective when covered with writing.

How to Make Gas Jet Propellers. According to Directions Given in Golden Days—A Pretty Toy That Will Be Found to Be Instructive.

To make a toy propeller—or rather a pair of propellers—take an ordinary cork, such as is used for the stopper of a bottle, and cut it into four equal pieces. Then, with a sharp knife, cut a hole through each piece, and insert a card-board blade about three inches long by one inch wide. Now take a small piece of string, and after making a knot at the end, slip on a glass bead (the bead and the string should be of the same size as the hole in the cork).

Make four cuts or notches in a slanting direction (A) in the sides of each piece, and insert card-board blades about three inches long by one inch wide (B). Now take a small piece of string, and after making a knot at the end, slip on a glass bead (the bead and the string should be of the same size as the hole in the cork).
